FRENCH BATTLING GERMANS IN TUNISIA

Eddie Rickenbacker, Lost 24 Days, Is Rescued

Meandering Along the Main Stem

By WASH. FAYETTE
Omar F. Sturgeon, member of the Fayette County board of education, who resides along Paint Creek just below where Sugar Creek empties into it, has quite a number of interesting old newspapers. One of these, "The Daily Herald," of Saturday, Nov. 26, 1887, is very interesting. Omar called my attention to a column-long article in that issue, telling of statesmen trying to decide what should be done with a huge surplus in the national treasury—evidently going under the assumption that "to the victor belongs the spoils."

One of the things that attracted my attention was an advertisement headed "Opera House!" and announcing "Abbey's double mammoth spectacular Uncle Tom's Cabin company with two uniformed brass bands, white and colored, and the world renowned mystic quartette—the only double quartette company in existence."

Say, I'll bet that show was a jim-dandy, and I wish I could turn back 55 years, occupy a seat down in the bald-headed row and see the baying bloodhounds chase Eliza across the ice-covered river; laugh at the imitable antics of Topsy, who "just growed up;" scowl at the inhuman Simon LeGree; shed a few tears over the death of little Eva and sigh deeply as Uncle Tom cashed in his checks. The play was given in the old opera house that stood on West Market Street on the site of the present Farm Bureau Co-op establishment.

I notice that a street parade was listed and that reserved seats could be obtained at 35 and 50 cents at Coffman's Drug Store.

Here's another case of "born 30 years too late."

Well, I just got back from the Railway Express office where I left two used tires to go into the big stock pile to help keep America on rubber until artificial rubber is available or we kick the Japs out of the crude-rubber producing areas—or both.

As directed, I selected the five best tires. I turned over the other two. This is necessary before one can obtain a gasoline rationing card.

When the government clamped the lid on sale of new tires early this year, I purchased two recaps to help keep the boat rolling and that left two spares. So I have just spared the spares for Uncle Sam.

Yes, I asked that Uncle Sam send me a check for them. As I understand it, the grand old man will sell them to someone else and pocket the money received for them.

W. B. Tooker, Railway Express agent here, informed me that up to 3:30 A. M. Tuesday he had shipped six tons of tires and they were still rolling in. Rather they are being brought in by owners of cars who had more than five tires.

One man got a little excited when he learned that gasoline rationing might be postponed, and asked that his tire be held up by Tooker until he was certain.

However, Uncle Sam has not changed his mind about wanting all those tires above five for each car. They must be turned over to the Express Company before rationing cards can be obtained.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—(AP)—The Navy announced that Captain Eddie Rickenbacker, famous pilot who was lost on an Army mission in the South Pacific October 21, had been rescued from the sea by a Navy flying boat.

All members of the Rickenbacker party have been accounted for in one way or another, a brief Navy announcement said.

"Captain Eddie Rickenbacker, Colonel Hans C. Adamson and Private John F. Bartek, all of the United States Army who have been missing since October 21 when the plane in which they were flying was forced down in the Pacific, have been rescued from the sea by a Navy Catalina Flying boat," the Navy reported.

"Captain Rickenbacker reported that Sergeant Alexander

Caczmarek who was with them died several days ago and was buried at sea.

"Lieutenant James C. Whitaker, Lieutenant John J. De Angelis and Staff Sergeant James Reynolds, all of the United States Army who were also aboard the missing plane, have been located by a Catalina Flying Boat ashore on a small island in the South Pacific.

"With the rescue of Captain William T. Cherry, United States Army, this makes all the personnel of the Rickenbacker party accounted for."

The rescue of Cherry was announced yesterday. The War Department said that, although weakened by about three weeks exposure to sun and sea he was "in good condition."

Cherry was the pilot of the plane, which was carrying Rickenbacker to the war zone for a survey of air force operations for Secretary of War Stimson.

The famous World War flier's party had been last heard from October 21 when a radio message came through saying the plane had only about one hour's supply of gasoline.

Through the long days of waiting this time two persons typified America's hope that Rickenbacker would yet be saved.

His wife had said: "Eddie will turn up. He's too old a hand to get lost in any airplane now."

Stimson had commented that Rickenbacker was "an exception to ordinary rules."

African Invasion Is Praised by Stalin

Hot Spots in North African Theatre of War

This map shows the latest developments in the North African theatre of war. The Nazis have driven to the south of France and entered the strategic port and city of Marseilles (1). The Italians have moved into Nice (2) and have announced the occupation of Corsica (3). German forces (4) and American and British troops (5) are rapidly approaching each other for a clash which may come in Tunisia. A naval battle is reported off Sicily (6). Allied planes attacked airdromes near Tunis, setting nineteen Axis planes on fire. (Central Press)

Port of Genoa Wrecked by Long-range Raid—Many

LONDON, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Home based British bombers returned to the attack upon Italy's supply port of Genoa last night and started many large fires, the Air Ministry announced today.

Every plane returned from the hazardous, 1,500-mile round trip which involves two crossings of the Alps.

"The weather over the target was good and many large fires were started," the Air Ministry said.

It was the second blow in a week at Genoa, Ligurian sea coast city 75 miles from England. The RAF smashed at Genoa in successive raids Friday and Saturday of last week to cripple the warehouses and transportation facilities serving the German-Italian desert troops of Marshal Erwin Rommel.

The night sweep followed a day in which Allied fighters carried out offensive patrols over Nazi-occupied Holland and Brittany.

"Canal barges and railway locomotives were attacked," the Air Ministry said. "None of our aircraft is missing."

Meanwhile, Red Armies Yield

By ROGER D. GREENE

(By the Associated Press)
French and German troops battled in the streets of ancient Tunis today while the vanguard of a powerful Anglo-American expeditionary force raced across the Tunisian frontier to combat Nazi air-borne invaders of the key North African buffer state.

Tunisia lies between American-occupied Algeria and Italian Libya.

Simultaneously, British headquarters announced that Gen. B. L. Montgomery's victorious British 8th army had swept 40 miles beyond fallen Tobruk in pursuit of Nazi Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's fleeing troops.

Abandoned without a fight, Tobruk fell to the British yesterday morning, and today's communique said the triumphant imperials already had cleared the desert as far westward as Gazala.

A British communique indicated that Adolf Hitler was making a desperate attempt to reinforce his tenuous grip on the French protectorate of Tunisia, reporting that Allied fighters yesterday shot down seven large Axis aircraft out of a formation of 60 planes en route from North Africa toward Sicily. Six others were badly damaged.

These were presumably Axis transport planes returning north to pick up more troops and supplies. Allied headquarters said the Germans already had landed 12-ton tanks in Tunisia by air and were trying to bring other reinforcements by sea.

French radio broadcasts said a naval battle was in progress off American-occupied Algeria, next door to Tunisia, which suggested that Allied warships were attacking the Axis sea-borne reinforcements.

Latest dispatches pictured Tunisia, site of the 2,700-year-old Carthaginian empire, as the scene of widespread battle, with French troops fiercely resisting Nazi parachute troops in the crooked winding streets of Tunis, the capital, and at other strategic centers.

All French soldiery in North Africa had now apparently swung over to the side of the United Nations, spurred on by appeals by such leaders as Admiral Jean Darlan, Gen. Henri Honoré Giraud and Gen. Auguste Nogues.

All these former French military chiefs now are collaborating with the Allies.

The exact position of France's old Marshal Pétain still was obscure, but it was apparent that he was acting under heavy Nazi pressure and virtually a German prisoner.

A Vichy broadcast asserted the 86-year-old French chief of state had sent a message to Admiral Darlan declaring that Darlan's decision to resume responsibility for French interests in Africa, with the approval of American authorities, was against Pétain's orders.

Reports from Tangier said British troops, the vanguard of Lieut. Gen. K. A. N. Anderson's British-American expeditionary column, had already crossed into Tunisia from Algeria.

Nazi parachute troops were reported in control of the airdrome at Tunis, 80 miles east of the Tunisian frontier, which was again under heavy attack last night.

The Algiers radio said Tunis was under air-raid alarm thrice during the night, once for three hours and later for 30 minutes.

A British communique said Al-

President Tells Farmers of Their Obligation

WENATCHEE, Wash., Nov. 14.—President Roosevelt told the nation's Granges today, in a special message to their 76th National Convention, that "in this war, the need for American food and other farm products is almost without limit."

"This year American farmers made a magnificent response to the demands upon them," the President said in a message to the Grange master, Albert S. Goss. "Those demands are increasing; so are the obstacles in meeting them."

"The rural families of the United States face many sacrifices, many difficulties. The nation looks to them to produce the food we need to win this war, and to fulfill all their other wartime obligations as citizens... as in the past, the great farm organizations have a large place in helping farmers work together for victory."

Uncle Sam Promises Food To All Countries Occupied

By KENNETH L. DIXON

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—(AP)—While the Yanks in North Africa drove an unexpected blow into the Nazi breadbasket, the cold, hungry and disarmed peoples of Axis-occupied lands had President Roosevelt's pledge today that food, clothing and fighting equipment would be provided them with the coming of the Allies.

By presidential order, lend-lease supplies will be sped to the people of French North Africa—where American capture of vital Axis-bound food and materials in recent days is expected to put morale-damaging cramps in German stomachs and production lines alike.

In a strategic move aimed at softening even pseudo-resistance to the spreading Allied offensive the president late yesterday made it clear that the same consideration would be given any territory occupied by United Nations troops, "if it is humanly within our powers."

But even more mortal a blow at Axis morale was seen in the President's promise of aid, thrown open to the entire world with the words that "no one will go hungry or without the other means of livelihood in any territory occupied by the United Nations, if it is humanly within our powers to make the necessary supplies available to them."

Weapons also will be supplied to the people of these territories to hasten the defeat of the Axis.

Mussolini: Yeah, watch it, shorty.

Hitler: Listen, jerks—

Mussolini (drawing himself up to 5 feet 2): I didn't come here to be insulted!

Hitler: All right! All right! So you're both dumb. Have it your way! But get this straight—

Laval: Now Adolf—

Hitler: Whoever said for you to call me Adolf, yet?

Laval: I thought we were supposed to be collaborating. . . .

Mussolini: Collaboration—all the time collaboration. I got a house full of collaboration. Sixty Nazi collaborators. Every meal we have collaboration. And when Hitler: Tomorrow we rule the world. So?

Mussolini: Poor mamma.

Hitler: Answer! Hitler speaks! Ain't it so?

Mussolini: Heil Hitler!

Hitler: Now, does anybody want to make any concessions?

Mussolini: Savoy, Tunisia, Nice!

Laval: Is that nice?

Hitler: Get down to facts. What can you throw into the pot in this crisis? We're all for one, and I'm the one.

STATE MEETING
IS NEXT WEEK
AT NEIL HOUSE

Fayette County Is To Send Delegates To Take Part
In Discussions

With the drain of the armed forces and war industries on farm labor the center of a swirling nationwide controversy, Fayette County's two delegates and two alternates today looked forward to seeing the question put through the thrasher at the 24th annual convention of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation next Wednesday, Thursday and Friday in Columbus.

The executive committee of the national Farm Bureau already has taken a definite stand on the farm labor problems and set forth its policies in resolutions and recommendations. The whole conglomerate is expected to come in for a thorough going-over next week on the convention floor and committee rooms.

The Farm Bureau's executive committee, called together to consider the farm labor problem, has recommended with respect to selective service that all dairy, livestock and poultry farm operators, tenants or workers be deferred while engaged in this work but that this not preclude the worker's right to move from one farm to another which meets these standards. It also recommended that the army and navy continue the present policy of not accepting farm workers for enlistment.

With respect to suggestions that minimum wage and maximum hour standards be applied to farm help, the committee said, in part: "We are convinced that it would be practically impossible to apply uniform standards governing hours of labor and minimum wages, for the following reasons:

"First, weather and season must determine hours of employment on the farm. Second, under the present Price Control law, literally interpreted and fairly applied, farm operators and tenants would be assured of reasonable prices and income to keep them in active production; and employers will be in a position to pay reasonable wages for experienced farm help. Third, farm wage earners will be protected because even with these policies in effect, demand for this type of farm worker will greatly exceed the supply."

Telegrams were sent to Secretary of Agriculture Claude Wickard and General Hershey, director of the Selective Service System, informing them of the action of the committee.

Good Livestock Prices
Are Foreseen for Future

A strong livestock market for an indefinite period is foreseen by Frank DeWitt, veteran stock buyer and market analyst, against a background of demands exceeding supplies.

DeWitt contends, in the following article in which the opinions expressed are his own and do not necessarily reflect the views of this newspaper, the USDA over-guessed the winter hog crop and expressed the belief that there will be no glut of the market.

The cattle supply, DeWitt declares, is falling off and predicts prices will at least remain near present levels if, in fact, they do not rise.

Fayette County farmers are always interested in the good sheep flocks founded either in the county or close by and especially when that boy happens to be a former Fayette County youth.

Dwight W. Grimsley, formerly of Bloomingburg, Ohio, now located on his own farm just over the county line in Madison County has built one of the good flocks of Shropshires to be found anywhere. He has seventy head in all. His flock is headed by the great Iroquois ram who was second yearling at the International last year and is regarded by many competent judges as the top ram of 1942. Mr. Grimsley is always glad to show visitors his fine flock. Visit him.

It was stated last week that the Australian farmer has his trouble with sheep raising just as do those in Fayette County. One of their most serious pests to combat is the blow-fly. The question has frequently been asked, what is the best thing to do to cope with the trouble referred to? The best answer seems to be, "Prevention is better than cure." It has to be admitted, however, that even where the greatest care is taken to prevent the ewes getting blown there is nearly always a percentage affected. On the large stations—a ranch is called a station—not a great deal can be done to combat this pest, except perhaps to burn all carcasses found. Whenever possible, if the station is not large, the ewes are breeched and crutched sometime before lambing.

In some districts the wethers and even rams get fly blown. The remedy, of course, is to clip the wool from the affected parts and apply some arsenical dip or kerosene.

CATTLE FEEDERS
OF CORN BELT
TAKING CHANCES

Purchases of Stock Calves
From Ranges Indicates No
Fear of Ceilings

By WILLIAM FERRIS

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—(P)—Reports of the Department of Agriculture on the number of cattle shipped into the corn belt for feeding during October were seen by livestock circles today as an indication that producers were willing to take a chance on profitable feeding operations despite price ceilings on beef.

This is a matter of considerable importance for the country's total beef supply, it was said, because it is the feeders who put weight on young cattle. Earlier this year, when the livestock trade was originally influenced by beef ceilings, there was a sharp drop in buying of cattle for feeding purposes. On August 1 there were 19 percent less cattle in feed lots of the corn belt than there had been a year earlier.

Since that time, there has been a pick-up in purchases. A gain of 9 percent in shipments to the corn belt was reported in August and September, as compared with last year, and in October shipments were up 20 percent. October shipments, according to the department, probably exceeded the record October of 1940.

Meanwhile, the country continues to send large number of cattle to market. Cattle inspected at public stockyards in October were about 19 percent over October, 1941, and the largest for the month since 1930.

The department said, however, that its reports continued to indicate a reduction in cattle feeding in nearly all western states. This was blamed on the

"TO ROB OR NOT ROB THEM, THAT'S THE QUESTION."

That's what I thought, when I looked at some of our bee hives, and found the first super on some of them, almost filled with honey. A friend, who has been very successful with bees, says he likes to leave a super for additional food in winter season, and another who has raised bees for many years, says that if the hive is large, that they don't need it, and they will have enough to winter on, and to come out in the spring with a strong colony, all ready to make honey, early in the season, when bees do some of their best work.

I am wondering what plan our readers follow in the winter management of their bees, and how much honey they leave in the supers, above the hive, for the information of our readers.

I would like to know, too, how the hives are prepared for the winter season. A circular on my desk points out the value of wrapping the hives with building paper, in early winter, so as to give them some additional protection against north winds. A successful bee raiser, who produced almost a ton of honey one year, says he doesn't give the hives any additional covering, and that they winter all right. He does advise putting a thin board about half an inch wide, across part of the entrance to the hive, so as to reduce the amount of cold air that can enter. He does this late in November and sometimes in December, if the weather continues warm.

LIONS BEAT CIRCLEVILLE AND TAKE SCO CHAMPIONSHIP

Those little Washington C. H. High School Blue Lions smeared the so-called tough Circleville Tigers Friday night at Gardner Park by a score of 19 to 0 before a crowd of about 1500, one of the smallest of the season, and won the South Central League crown for 1942.

The Lions were really on the beam and the seniors, ten of them, who played their last game for WHS, saw plenty of service.

But every boy on the squad got into the game before it was over.

Three of the four seniors in the Lion backfield walked off the field with memories of having made touchdowns in the wind-up of their high school careers. They tried hard enough to give the other member of the ball-toting quartet his chance but could not get close enough. They even let Captain Bob Allen, who has spent his football days being mauled in the middle from his center post, carry the ball—Bob had confided to his team mates that he always had an ambition to run with the ball but he was too good a center.

Joe Tillett crashed over for the first score in the first period from the one-yard line. Perce Mann went barging through, carrying red-jerseyed Tigers on his back, from the eight-yard line in the second period for the second marker. And, in the third period, Paul Shoultz sprinted around end from the two-yard line for the last touchdown. Johnny Anderson, the slightly-built quarterback whose main job is blocking for his mates, was handed the ball more than usual against Circleville in the hope that he, too, could register a touchdown, but to no avail. Johnny turned in several dazzling runs but they all were far down the field after he had taken punts or intercepted passes.

The seniors spent much of the last half and nearly all of the final period on the bench watching the second stringers who will follow in their footsteps next year. Toward the end of the game they were sent back en masse for their final whirl.

The first quarter opened with the Lions receiving the kick off, but making no headway, they punted to Circleville. Friedman's punt, from the end zone was blocked by Bill Curry and recovered on the 6-yard line by Capt. Bob Allen. Mann hit center for a gain of 5 yards, placing the ball on the Tiger's one-yard line. Two plays failed to get the ball across the goal line but on the next play Joe Tillett carried the ball over for the first tally of the game. Mann's kick for the extra point hit the cross bar on the goal post and was no good.

The Lions opened an aerial attack in the second period. Paul Shoultz tossed a pass to Joe Tillett for a gain of 25 yards to the Tiger 16-yard line. Shoultz again threw a pass but this time to "Rabbit John" Anderson, complete for a gain of 8 yards and from there Mann butted the ball over for the Lions' second touchdown. On a surprise play for the extra point, Paul Shoultz, who usually holds the ball for Mann to kick the extra points, received a pass from center and rambled around his own left end for the extra point. This was the only extra point scored during the whole game.

The Lions received a punt early in the third quarter on the 50-yard line and with Tillett and Mann making successive gains, moved to the 4-yard line where Circleville was penalized, set the ball on the 2-yard line.

Paul Shoultz sprinted around the left side of his own line, for the Lions' third and last touchdown. The extra point kicked by Mann was good but one of the Lion forward wall was penalized for holding and the kick had to be tried over. The ball, however, then had to be kicked from the 25-yard line, but the kick was blocked by a Tiger and was ruled no good.

In the last quarter, the Tigers came near scoring when they reached the Lions' 5-yard line with just a few minutes left to play. The Lions' second team line held them back, however, and finally took possession of the ball. On their second play Rudduck kicked to Circleville. The Tigers' pass, on which they held their hopes for getting in the scoring column, was intercepted by Lincoln Schwartz, who was playing halfback. The gun sounded a few seconds later and the Lions took over undisputed first place in the South Central League.

HEAVE IT!—Stocky Paul Sarringhaus, junior halfback of Ohio State's team, gets set to heave one.

UNBEATEN LIONS WEAR CROWN OF SCO FOOTBALL

Greenfield with One Defeat Is Second and Circleville Finishes in Middle

The Washington C. H. Blue Lions took the South Central League championship for the third time in the last four years and the second consecutively.

Undisputed first place went to the Lions after they defeated the Circleville Tigers here Friday night by a score of 19 to 0.

Last year the Lions tied for first place with the Greenfield Tigers but the year before ended up in third place. In 1939 the Lions held their top spot position all by themselves.

The loss of Circleville's sent them to third place after losing their chance for a first place tie. Washington C. H. is in first place with four wins and no losses while Greenfield trails closely behind with three wins and one loss, that loss to Washington C. H. Circleville is third with an even break, two and two, losing to Greenfield and Washington C. H. Wilmington holds fourth place position with one win and three losses. The only league game they won was from Hillsboro who is last place with all losses.

Following are the standings:

Team	W	L	Pct.
Washington C. H.	4	0	1.000
Greenfield	3	1	.750
Circleville	2	2	.500
Wilmington	1	3	.250

-Spying- On Sports

By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—(P)—There must be some compelling reason when boys go out on a raw November afternoon without enough clothes to keep warm and run five or six miles over a hilly cross-country course. . . . And knowing that a couple hundred young men will do just that in the Big Ten meet at Chicago today and as many more will run Monday in the Intercollegiate A.A.A.A. meet here, this dept. sought a sound explanation. . . . The answer from Pete Waters, Manhattan College track coach is: "It's the best conditioner in the world. When boys run cross country in the fall, they're really in shape. Those milers you see in the garden during the winter prove it." . . . Why is it better than running on a track? . . . "Well, the hills help, but mostly it's because the change of scenery peps them up. Running around in a squirrel cage gets pretty tiresome after a few laps."

It Can Happen

Ever hear of a forward pass catching the receiver instead of vice versa? . . . Well, it happened in a schoolboy game at Washington, D. C., between Western and Devitt the other day. . . . Halfback Duke O'Connell of Western pitched a pass. . . . The ball hit quarterback Alex Papanicolas on the back of the neck and stuck between his helmet and shoulder pad. . . . Pap ran 15 yards before he realized what had happened and then he reached around and grabbed the ball, making a 20-yard gain.

Today's Guest Star

Tim Cohane, New York World-Telegram: "It might not be a bad idea to have Williams and Colgate meet for the shoving bowl championship. . . . That would be one battle in which both teams would get a good lathering."

Bloomington Beats Alumni

Bloomington's basketball team played right in the school with interscholastic teams Friday night and the Varsity defeated the Alumni by a score of 41 to 16 and a team made up from the grades defeated the third team by a score of 14 to 7.

Gray was the high varsity scorer with 21 points.

Highland Foxhunters Hold Annual Trials

Ninety dogs were entered in the annual field trials of the Highland County Foxhunters Association which opened Friday and will continue over Saturday.

The trials are being held near Hillsboro, and the bench show Friday night was at the Armory in Hillsboro.

Wartime Football Is Different And Here Is Some of Evidence

By HAROLD CLAASSEN

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—(P)—If the upsets to date haven't convinced the fans there is something different in this football season, a glance at today's program should settle all doubts: Yale vs Princeton at New York; Illinois vs Ohio State at Cleveland; Cornell vs Dartmouth at Buffalo; Columbia vs Navy at Baltimore; Ohio Wesleyan vs Boston University, cancelled.

The Ohio Wesleyan-Boston

University game was dropped because the mid-western eleven was unable to get travel accommodations to the east while the four other games were shifted from their campus settings under the war-born policy of bringing the game to the spectators instead of lugging the public to the contests.

But there are two sites, at least, where the football on display and the crowds in attendance today will be of the pre-war variety.

In one, once-beaten Alabama brings its defensive-minded outfit to Atlanta for a meeting with unbowed Georgia Tech. The other contest renews the Michigan-Notre Dame rivalry that was broken off at the turn of the century over an eligibility question.

Every one of the 34,000 seats in Baker Field was sold early in the week for the 66th meeting of Yale and Princeton; Cornell and Dartmouth expect to attract 20,000 to their Ivy League brush; there'll be 40,000 watching Paul Governali passing at Baltimore and some 65,000 will sit in on the Illinois-Ohio State proceedings with the Big Ten lead at stake.

Iowa, tied with the Cleveland combatants for the loop top, is at Minnesota, whose Bill Daley isn't expected to get in the game; Wisconsin goes against Northwestern in the Purple's last chance of the year for a Big Ten win; Indiana entertains hapless Kansas State and Purdue argues with Michigan State.

Tulsa will try to prove its high rank by spilling Baylor and Texas Christian, one of the early season powers, hopes to apply the brakes to Texas' march to the Southwest Conference flag.

Missouri, its casualty list shrinking, heads south for Oklahoma and a game that will virtually decide the big six crown. On the west coast St. Mary's pre-flighters resume action at Washington and Southern California is host to Oregon.

Sidelights Of the Game

The Washington C. H. High School Blue Lions ended a successful season Friday night and their final totals stood at 8 wins and 1 loss. The coaches, Head Coach Jerry Kissell and Assistant Coach George Miraben, are to be complimented on turning out an excellent team from WHS and also a league leading team. Both coaches are new to WHS this year and have set up a good record for themselves and the school. The downtown coaches are also satisfied with their light Lions and were glad to see them come through and take the league championship.

The game Friday night with Circleville resembled, somewhat, the first game of the season, the game with Portsmouth East, when the Tigers started carrying men from the field. During the Portsmouth game, the Trojans assisted 13 men from it while Friday night Circleville had 7 injuries.

The whole team is worthy of praise for giving the fans so much to talk about and the good games they played for them to see. Friday night, at one time, all ten seniors, Capt. Bob Allen, Al-Ex Wackman, Johnny Anderson, Joe Tillett, Paul Shoultz, Pershing Mann, Hunter Morris, Don Harper, Stan Mark and Marlyn Engle, were in the game at the same time. The other player was a junior, Dick Kelly. A few minutes later the complete team changed and the seniors were taken out of the game for the last time. The second team, however, made a good showing and finished the game.

The band also had ten seniors, the same number as the team, who "played their last game for WHS" Friday night. They too are to be congratulated for their fine work on the field. The band turned out at every game this year except the Chillicothe game, the only game they lost. Paul Fitzwater has led the band through a successful season again and the seniors were not glad for it to be the last game.

The ten band members who are seniors are Joan Wilson, Lois Cavince, Elda Jayne Mossbarger, Annalee Reser, Jean Everhart, Dale Tool, Doty McGinnis, Louise King, Claire McDonald and Donald Riber.

During the last few minutes of the game Friday night, after the second team had been sent in to finish it up, the players on the WHS team were not playing regular positions. Some of them were in a different position which they had never played. Lincoln Schwartz, Lion tackle, played halfback and others were also mixed up.

An impromptu blackout overtook the field at Gardner Park Friday night when the smoke from the trains running beside the park, came down over the field so that at times it was impossible to see the players numbers. The annoying smoke swept over the field two times during the game, which practically "left everyone in the dark."

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—(P)—Hold your hats, boys—the lightweight merry-go-round is off the track again through the retirement of Sammy Angott and the seven-round technical knockout victory Beau Jack scored last night over No. 1 challenger Allie Stolz because of a cut eye.

When the state athletic commission's ringside physician ordered the bout halted, Allie's ailments were not regarded sufficiently severe for such drastic action.

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—(P)—Joe Pirrone of Cleveland, swinging wildly, lost an eight-round decision last night to Al Gomez of Chicago. Gomez weighed 134 1-2 and Pirrone 137.

Outfielder Being Sought By Boudreau

CLEVELAND, Nov. 14.—(P)—Note to the ivory hunters (Santa Claus please copy); Lou Boudreau would like to have a fly-catcher, preferably one with a house full of reasons for draft deferment.

The Indians' manager dropped into the front office while in town to see the gridders from his Alma Mater, Illinois, meet Ohio State, and also took a look at Cleveland Stadium, which made him think of his outfield troubles.

The Indians have only two outfielders "we can be reasonably sure of," he moaned. "We've got Jeff Heath and Roy Weatherly. Maybe we've got Oris Hockett, I don't know. He talked of quitting in the middle of last season to go back to his job in an aircraft factory and maybe he'll decide to stay there now, rather than play ball next year."

"Buster Mills has gone into the Army (air force) and Hank Edwards probably will go before the winter is over."

Boxing's Lightweights Again in Whirl After Jack Decisions Stolz

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—(P)—Hold your hats, boys—the lightweight merry-go-round is off the track again through the retirement of Sammy Angott and the seven-round technical knockout victory Beau Jack scored last night over No. 1 challenger Allie Stolz because of a cut eye.

Ohio vs Illinois Clash Is More Than Game

CLEVELAND, Nov. 14.—(P)—Illinois, the team which has surprised the Western Conference by moving into a first-place tie with Ohio State and Iowa, clashes with the Buckeyes in neutral Cleveland Lakefront stadium today.

The Illini are playing their last conference game, and they must win to remain in the championship picture.

A crowd of 65,000 to 70,000 is expected to witness the first western conference game ever played in Cleveland.

In their long series that began in 1902 and has run continuously in the Western Conference since 1914, this is the first time Ohio and Illinois have met on a neutral gridiron.

The last Illini win was in 1934 at Champaign, 14 to 13, but the Buckeyes still have a margin of only 16 games to 11, with one tie, in conference play.

Illinois received a hard blow when Dick Good, the club's ace passer, was shelved with an injured knee in the Notre Dame game.

Elmer Engel, the alert end who grabbed a fumble out of the air and ran 35 yards for a touchdown against Northwestern last week, is bothered with a cold and has lost seven pounds, but stayed in the lineup.

Bill Durtshi, Ohio's ace punter, is still on the sidelines. Tom Cleary, another strong punter, received a broken wrist in the Pittsburgh game last week and is out for the season.

The field, which was practically ruined by a recent army war show, appears to be in better condition. The new sod has knitted somewhat and the footing may prove firm.

ner as growers should by selling on bulges and holding back on breaks.

There is absolutely no danger now of glut at market centers. The market will wobble from day to day and week to week, but over any period will average around present levels. Stocks of meat are low and the winter packing season will afford scant opportunity for accumulation. Pork and lard are on a hand-to-mouth basis for the duration and a considerable period of time thereafter.

From official reports it seems that all efforts at controlling livestock prices have been abandoned except rationing.

Cattle supply is also falling down now that the trans-Missouri gathering season is over. I may be wrong but a load of $18 fat bullocks is due. The price will be paid at the Chicago show the first week in December, if not earlier. Long fed steers are at the disappearance stage.

Ninety percent of the steers munched corn are scheduled to be hanging up a decent carcass and winter replacement in feed lots will be light. The farm labor situation is not calculated to stimulate beef marketing. Ministering to a bunch of cattle in sloppy weather is not a white collar job.

If an over supply of livestock impends as some of the dopesters would have you believe, why is the government trying to control the supply by various methods such as price ceilings and rationings?

Jeff Cagers Are Swamped By Millers

The Madison Mills basketballers served notice on the rest of the Fayette County high schools Friday night that they were going to be one real tough team on the hardwood this season.

With every one of the first stringers cutting a slice of the victory cake, they swamped the Jeffersonville quintet, 54 to 22, as they ran wild over the floor, shooting and hitting from all angles. Lindsey led the scoring parade with seven field goals and two free goals for a 15-point total.

Smith, with 8 points, and Cook, with 7 points, were the high scorers for Jeffersonville.

Jeffersonville rose to the peak last year when its basketballers were the runners-up in the district tourney. Graduation, however, put a crimp in the squad.

WHY WE'RE DIFFERENT
Axis propagandists will try to make it appear that the results of our election spell American disunity. That was the line taken by Vichy, even before the votes were cast, and that is the interpretation with which Herr Goebbels must seek to hearten the German people and dishearten those of the occupied countries.

But Hitler and Mussolini and Tojo are not deceived. They themselves know that the American people have merely rebuked their public servants for not being tough enough.

An off-year congressional election cannot be interpreted by adding up all the details—the defeat of Congressman X, the reelection of Senator Y, the narrow escape of Governor Z. These things are influenced too much by local and personal considerations.

The measure of what happened this year is the surge of discontent at a time when by all economic standards there should be only contentment. We have been hit hard by the draft, by taxes, by priorities and shortages. All of these and other inconveniences promise to become more onerous. But we did not punish congressmen for this, or elect replacements in hope of lightening the load.

Rather, what we did was express our disgust with too-little, too-late policies which, in fact, have spared us material discomforts but which have slowed us down in the prime task of beating Hitler. The important thing—the thing which Hitler and Mussolini and Hirohito cannot explain away—is that in the midst of total war we have held a completely free election.

Being united wholly in the will to win this war, we yet had the freedom to differ about how it can best be won.

Being resolved to support our President to the limit against the outside world, we yet reserved the right to differ with him about internal policies, and to increase in Washington the number of legislators pledged to oppose many of Mr. Roosevelt's domestic policies.

Having given to the President an accumulation of powers such as no other American ever enjoyed, we decided to have in congress more men with a mind to keep the President under constant surveillance in his exercise of those powers.

We knew we had to resign many of our normal prerogatives for the time being, but we didn't like it, so we knocked off a few political heads just as a warning that the resignation is voluntary, temporary and grudging.

The fascists said that democracy could not work in wartime. Well, let them study the results of this election and see how they like that.

Washington at a Glance

WASHINGTON — Vice President Henry A. Wallace's diagnosis of the recent election result as a Roosevelt administration victory, because the Democrats did not lose control of the senate and house of representatives, has caused a considerable amount of smiling in Washington political circles. To be more exact, they are not exactly smiling, so far as the Democrats are concerned. They're wry grins, instead, which don't signify satisfaction, but merely imply the would-be smilers' contention that a severe kick in the pants isn't necessarily fatal.

There is, however, a substantial bit of argument to the effect that present members of the cabinet ought to offer their resignations in a cluster.

This proposition's advanced by some Democrats as well as Republicans.

The Republicans themselves don't insist that all should be accepted. They think, though, that several of 'em should be. The Republicans say so on general principles; the Democrats as well wishers toward their own party.

Frances Perkins is panned especially. "Ma" may be done a certain

Words of Wisdom

Happy are they that hear their detractors, and can put them to mending.—Shakespeare.

Today's Horoscope

If your birthday is today you have a winning personality and strong emotions, with the will power to keep your anger and joy moderately controlled. You often make your judgments without sufficient reflection, however, but are resourceful and always interested in improvement. Provided you use tact in the written and spoken word, despite great provocation, and keep documents in safe custody, the next year will bring you happiness and success. The child who is born today will meet with great good fortune, but be liable to troubles through disputation and correspondence. He or she must be watchful against theft and fraud.

Hints on Etiquette

A man should never jump into his car and allow his female companion to seat herself as best she may. A young lady says she can tell when people are married when the man does this. See that your lady is comfortably seated, then close the door on her side and run around the car to get in at your side.

Horoscope for Sunday

Today's birthday children have the industry and stern determination to win out in the end of all difficulties. They are practical, keen-minded and loyal in their affections. They will experience some good fortune in the next year, but domestic matters or friendships will cause them concern. Employers will be difficult, and they should safeguard their health and reputation. The child who is born on this date will be likely to suffer through the opposite sex and friends generally, hence the advisability of caution. Aside from this, moderate success is portended.

HAS POSSIBILITIES

Agriculture Secretary Wickard suggests that the 2,000,000 families now trying to exist on sub-marginal farms be moved onto more productive acres which are crying for labor.

If that could be done it would go far toward meeting the farm labor crisis and assuring the United Nations of the food they will need next year. Such an ideal undoubtedly is unattainable in full degree.

But we can hope that positive steps will be taken to translate the idea, at least in part, into action. For less sensible plans on various things have been tried by our government.

amount of injustice. The hope is that her labor department has been unduly favored at the expense of agriculture, and that the farmers are on her trail to a degree that makes her unfairly conspicuous. Yet, of course, the farmers complain that Agriculture Secretary Wickard hasn't taken adequate care of 'em.

Morgenthau Another
Treasury Secretary Morgenthau, it goes almost without saying, is on the par for current taxes.

War and Navy Secretaries Stimson and Knox naturally are accused of derelictions in their respective fields of operation.

State Secretary Hull apparently has functioned pretty competently. He hasn't quite lined up Argentina and Chile, but he's gradually acquiring 'em.

Justice, the postoffice and the interior aren't factors.

The interior and commerce divisions will be, after the war, when readjustments start, but as yet, they don't signify.

There probably will be some sort of a post-war readjustment department, too, later—a department of which Owen D. Young, today's chairman of the General Electric company, promises to be the head, as secretary of transportation. That's assuming, to be sure, that the current political authority's still in power then. It's reckoning on it as a potent influence among peace-time influences. It's slated to co-ordinate railroading, motor transport and aviation. The army and navy are liable to be defensively compacted together, but transportation apparently is due to be separately calculated with.

In the meantime, and immediately New Deal leaders are demanding a clean sweep of the Democratic national committee.

Flynn May Go
Differing entirely from the Wallace verdict, Democratic sentiment, in general, demands a wholesale cleaning out of Chairman Joe Flynn and associates, and a completely new set-up.

They want younger men, the rising generation urges.

There isn't any dispute on the war issue.

There is one on economics.

It's interesting to note that Senator George W. Norris, beaten for congressional re-election, was suggested for the federal supreme bench. He's 81. Nobody, at his age, ever was appointed to it. He's a left-over, from a past generation. But wasn't it, maybe, a better generation than this one?

Senator Norris' feelings are hurt by his defeat at the polls.

You don't have to agree with him entirely, to sympathize with him.

His defeat is personal, not alone political—and after 50 many years on Capitol Hill!

He isn't exactly personally defeated, either.

He's defeated as a broad-scale liberal of a lifetime's standing.

War Must Not Retard Fight on Tuberculosis

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

DURING the battle of Wagram, Beethoven sat in a cellar in Vienna about 10 miles away and composed one of the movements of the Eroica Symphony. During the French Revolution, Joseph

Dr. Clending will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Priestley, in England, although his country was at war with France, conducted a correspondence with the French chemist, Lavoisier, concerning the structure of certain gases.

When the soldiers of Marcellus found Archimedes in Syracuse, he was in his garden working on the hypotenuse of a right-angled triangle. Charles Martel smashed the infidels at Tours, but one of them, Ibn Kazah, was writing his commentaries on the Canon of Avicenna at Cordova. During the battle of Waterloo a young man was studying in the wards of the Necker Hospital in Paris and a year later he invented the stethoscope.

All of which is put down to indicate that wars come and wars go and one side wins and one side loses, but the great things of civilization, science, art, literature, and the arts are the most important things—not the triumphs of the tuppenny captains and diplomats. Man's ordered thought has made only a few halts in its advance from the days of Egypt, and those halts were not due to wars.

Must Keep Gains
It is one of my deepest convictions that during this present emergency, no matter how urgent the demands for funds for war, we must hold the gains we have made to the permanent happiness of mankind.

Among these specifically is our mounting victory over tuberculosis—one of the worst enemies mankind ever had.

I quote a heading from a late number of the Journal of the American Medical Association: "Tuberculosis on the way out."

Our statistics for the whole registration area of the United States were completed in 1933. From 1900 to 1933 some of the states admitted had the highest mortality in tuberculosis because they were regarded as resort states where the climate was beneficial to the disease. Yet the recorded tuberculosis mortality in the registration area declined from 174 per 100,000 in 1900 to 42 in 1933.

Steady Decline

Since 1933 the decline has been proportionately even more rapid. The total number of deaths in 1933 was 67,422 and in 1940, 55,576; and this despite a great gain in actual population.

In the West North Central Section, embracing seven states, the death rate from tuberculosis was 26 per 100,000 population in 1940. The growth of institutional cases is shown by the figure that 44 per cent of all tuberculosis deaths now occur in institutions.

This is a gain which mankind cannot afford to let drift. There is every indication that the record can be made better. No matter what the exigencies of war, this country which suffers no destruction of its hospitals must keep up the work, by buying Christmas seals to prevent tuberculosis.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

N. E.—His doctor tells my husband he has had active tuberculosis for 10 years. Could it be possible for him not to lose weight and carry on all this time? Is it necessary for the wife to have x-rays and tests taken?

Answer: Yes, a person may have active tuberculosis but have acquired such an immunity that his activity is little affected. The wife should certainly have a thorough examination.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clending has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. Word Story - - Supercilious

Compiled by WHS English Classes

The modern high school student, no doubt, finds himself uninterested in the fables of literature in which the author would have animals and flowers talk and eat like human beings. Yet on second thought the student finds that the motion picture theater continually entertains him by the colorful fables of the well-known movie cartoonist, Walt Disney.

With this much said about the fable let us proceed to understand the meaning of the Latin-derived word, supercilious, by considering the thought in Mildred Howell's fabulous poem entitled "The Difficult Seed." "This seed," a supercilious seed, "criticized each flower until it woke one summer hour and found itself a weed." How possible it is in human experience to be like the "supercilious seed," criticizing and haughty.

The word supercilious is derived from the Latin words super and ciliun, meaning above and eyebrow. The eyebrows, as well as the eyes, express a person's attitude or feeling. Just as the smile can be the facial evidence of joy, the raising of the eyebrows can be the characteristic habit of the haughty person, showing false pride, arrogance, and overconfidence.

To study the origin and composition of such words as supercilious helps to give a person a better understanding, appreciation, and use of the English language.

Road to Romance

CHAPTER THIRTY-EIGHT
MARY HURRIED straight to the F. B. I. offices when she arrived at the Nordex plant. Today, all was tense, efficient bedlam. F. B. I. men strode across the outer office on their way in or out of Danver's private quarters with urgent speed. His secretary, usually so pleasant, was too rushed with work to do more than motion Mary to a chair, indicating she would have to wait for her interview.

But Mary was in no mood to wait. Perhaps even at this minute they were deciding the fate of Bruce Martin! she hovered over the secretary's desk and asked how soon she could see Mr. Danver.

"When the executive meeting's over," Danver's secretary answered without looking up from her work.

Mary felt chills of apprehension creep up and down her spine. They were firing Bruce—or worse, planning to hold him in formal arrest over the sabotage trouble. She was sure of it! She looked hopelessly at the closed door. When the executive meeting was over, it would be too late. But it mustn't be! She had to tell them! Possessed by the urgency of the thought, she rushed across the room and, before the secretary could call out, pushed open the door of Danver's private office.

Fourteen men looked up from the long conference table as the small, shining-eyed girl slipped into the room, and they watched her with amazement as she advanced upon them, with the reckless violent speed of a cyclone. Danver stood up to stop her with frowning courtesy.

"Miss Dexter, if you'll wait in the outer office, I'll see you when the meeting is over."

Mary had reached Danver's side and she stood facing him, her slim body, in its green suede frock, trembling with determination, her green eyes blazing with purpose. "I can't wait," she said. "I have to give my report before this meeting—before they make any decisions!"

The Nordex officials regarded Mary with growing surprise; Danver with divided emotions. Beneath his perturbation over this unusual procedure, his keen analytical sense was delighting in its own error. Here was the quiet, retiring little girl whom he had hesitated to trust with an assignment requiring the slightest courage! A timid housewife, he thought. Women—confound them and bless them—forever slipping through the bars of psychological charts! No way of measuring their potential courage and power when faced with danger to one of their beloved.

With a sudden gesture of friendly welcome, he moved aside to make room for her at the table, and introduced her as one of the Nordex workers co-operating with his department.

Mary told her story in a rush of eagerness; her assignment to question Joe Banks only at the luncheon table, her disobeying this order to go with him on a round of night clubs, her meeting Joe Banks' friends, and finally of Bruce Martin's disastrous adventure with the green sedan. She laid the flattened bullet in Danver's hand as she finished on a restatement of her belief in Bruce's innocence. Then, as she paused for breath, her eyes focused for the first time on the faces of her imposing audience. Her heart sank at their expressions. They had listened calmly to her evidence—evidence that she thought convincing. But they had not been convinced. They remained polite, sympathetic with her, but impassive.

She cried desperately, "But if Bruce Martin were a member of the sabotage ring, they would not be shooting at him, would they?"

"You said, Miss Dexter, that Mr. Martin told you it was these men who had shot at him."

Mary caught her breath in dismay as she realized where her story had fallen down. "He was telling the truth," she cried. "He doesn't have any idea I'm working with the F. B. I."

She felt Danver's hand on her shoulder, heard him thanking her and asking her to wait for her interview. Somehow she stumbled from the room to sit miserably in the outer office. She found herself feeling the same bitter resentment toward these men that Bruce felt. Why did they turn thumbs down on him—why did they refuse to trust him? It wasn't fair!

By the time Danver called her back in, seated her in her usual chair beside his large desk and settled back in his chair for their private interview, she had worked herself into a state of fury. She burst out with her feelings concerning the unfair treatment of Bruce Martin. She said that she would not go on working for a stubborn, prejudiced, blind group of men such as this. Bruce Martin was innocent and they were determined to pin this sabotage on him!

Danver was smiling thoughtfully, drumming his fingers on the desk as she talked. When she had finished, he raised his eyes for a quick, measuring scrutiny of her as she rose to leave, on the crest of her angry declaration. "Sit down, Miss Dexter," he said quietly. Deep amusement was in his eyes, and friendly sympathy, punctuating the satisfaction of her dramatic exit.

Mary hesitated. The amusement left his eyes. He added thoughtfully, "Your indignation is failing to clear Bruce, although your testimony is understandable. But your evaluation of the executives is, I am afraid, unfair. Because, you see, you don't have all of the information on the case."

"I know that you are grounding him because he took up a plane the other night—and I know the reason he took it up—"

"Are you sure?" Danver queried lightly. "Did you know, for instance, that the fire equipment had been tampered with in the hangar that night—that two men were picked up with high-powered explosives near the plant—both incriminating, 'plan to bomb the planes in the hangar.' A plan much easier carried out," he went on slowly, "with some distraction drawing a part of the workers outside—like a plane's being taken up against orders . . ."

"Oh, no!" cried Mary. The walls of the room seemed to be closing in on her. Cold terror clutched her heart. "He didn't do that! It was just a coincidence!"

"I hope it was," Danver said quietly. "But there have been, unfortunately, several coincidences. However, I can promise you this. There will have to be more than circumstantial evidence to convince us of Bruce Martin's guilt. We are not concerned with proving him guilty. We are concerned with breaking the sabotage ring of one of the cleverest, most ruthless Nazi organizers. We learned he was hiding in Mexico several months ago when one of his famous marked maps was picked up at the border . . . blueprints of California munition factories with the most vulnerable points marked with X's. For two years, the work of this master saboteur has kept the Allied powers in Europe on the anxious seat. Should his treacherous and elaborate system be allowed to become thoroughly organized here, it could effectively block the production of every munition plant on the coast! The sabotage attempts here at Nordex show certain evidence of his system. That is why we are so strict, so 'prejudiced' against every suspicious action. We are working under the weight of an overwhelming responsibility to keep these factories rolling, trying desperately to trace the bad waters of this espionage stream back to their source."

He swiveled forward again in his chair and got to his feet, indicating the interview was at an end. "There are times," he said quietly as Mary rose, "when we must choose between allegiance to our country and a desire to shield those we love. Think it over. If you want to take another assignment, let me know."

Mary was fumbling in her purse. She drew out a slip of paper and gave it to him. "The number of the coupe Joe Banks borrowed the other night to take me out," she said softly. Then her throat closed, and tears flooded her eyes.

Danver knew as he gripped her hand with cordial pressure, that she had given her answer.

It's Tough Job These Ferry Pilots Have

By WILLIAM F. BONI

(By The Associated Press)

LONG BEACH, Calif.—

"Through these portals pass the finest pilots on earth." So reads the sign over the pilots' lounge at Long Beach Municipal Airport.

A captious soul might want to argue the point, just as admirers of Ziegfeld showgirls in days gone by might have disputed Earl Carroll's similarly-worded claim to having "the most beautiful girls in the world" in his vanities.

But there can be no argument with the job these men are doing—the pilots of a ferrying division, Air Transport Command, Army Air Force. Each month these men deliver thousands of warplanes which roll out of the near-by plants of Consolidated, Douglas, Lockheed, North American, Northrop, Ryan Vega and Vultee.

On call constantly for word that a new shipment is ready, they fly east, north or west—across the Pacific—as the case may be. They fly everything from Ryan's primary trainers to Consolidated's four-engine liberators and the Flying Fortresses which Vega and Douglas are turning out in their pilot with Boeing.

This particular group is under the command of Col. Ralph E. Spake, 49-year-old veteran of First World War flying and a senior pilot in his own right. A senior pilot, for the benefit of late comers, is a man with a minimum of 1,800 flying hours, 900 of which must be military time.

Col. Spake, to quote his subordinates, "has a mania for moving airplanes," which makes him an ideal man for the job. This certainly is one section where there are a lot of planes to be moved.

To get them moved, two factors are of prime importance: Making as many pilots as possible familiar with all types of aircraft; keeping all the pilots in peak physical condition.

To achieve the first, Col. Spake and Maj. Richard D. Morgan, his operations man, run their own flying school, though they don't call it that. The planes the ferry pilots deliver usually are flown straight from the factory. The ones you will see lined up on the apron in front of the operations building, or racing off down the runways here, are Douglas A-20's or B-25's or Lockheed P-38's being used as "school ships."

These men, now playing gin-rummy, drinking cokes or swapping yarns of Egypt, Australia or Alaska, are on a seven-day-a-week schedule. They fly, sometimes, for 18 hours without letup, spend another 16 hours in a transport returning to this base, and may have to whip right off again only a few hours later.

FUTURE TEACHERS CLUB LAYS PLANS FOR PLAY

The WHS Future Teachers' Club met in the cafeteria in the high school for its regular meeting. Plans were discussed for a play the club will present soon.

After the luncheon, the meeting was called to order by the president, Joan Wilson. The minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Nancy Lee James, followed by the treasurer's report.

Miss Sara Keck was a guest at the meeting and spoke to the members.

The next meeting will be held Wednesday, November 27.

Ring Great Dead

One of boxing's greatest competitors in the old days, Philadelphia Jack O'Brien, in real life Joseph Hagan, is dead in New York following an operation. O'Brien, 64, won the light heavyweight championship in 1905, when he knocked out Bob Fitzsimmons in San Francisco in 12 rounds. He held the title until 1912, when he retired. Born in Philadelphia in 1886, O'Brien began his fighting in 1896 and continued until 1912, meeting most of the heavyweights of his day. In recent years he has been an instructor.

Miss Claire McDonald and Miss Pat Nisley Combined Hospitalities for Party

Climaxing an exceptionally gay and merry football season among the younger set, Miss Claire McDonald and Miss Pat Nisley entertained with a lovely party on Friday evening, at the McDonald home on Dayton Avenue.

The home was appropriately decorated with a blue and white color scheme, and the party was filled with most delightful pleasures, charmingly extended by the two pretty young hostesses.

Covers were laid for twelve at the dining table, which was covered with an elegant white linen cloth. Centering the table was a most artistic idea of a large crystal bowl filled with blue vapors. Blue tapers in crystal holders were on the small tables. Each cover was marked with a placard of a large megaphone with "Yea, Washington!" upon it. These were made by Miss Nisley. The courses were most delicious and of perfectly prepared seasonal viands.

After the exceedingly gay dinner hour, the young hostesses took their guests to the football game between Washington and Circleville.

The guests were Misses Mary Ann Craig, Elda Jane Mossbarger, Eleanor Paul, Jean McCoy, Eileen McGuire, Marilyn Griffith, Doty McGinnis, Betty Robinson, Joan Wilson, Betty Saum, Marjorie Scott, Hilda Lee

Mrs. Armstrong Is Hostess to Kensington Club

The Thursday Kensington Club was indebted to Mrs. Charles Armstrong for an enjoyable afternoon when she extended the hospitalities of her home for their semi-monthly meeting. The club has been busy with Red Cross sewing and at this session, work was done on children's comforts.

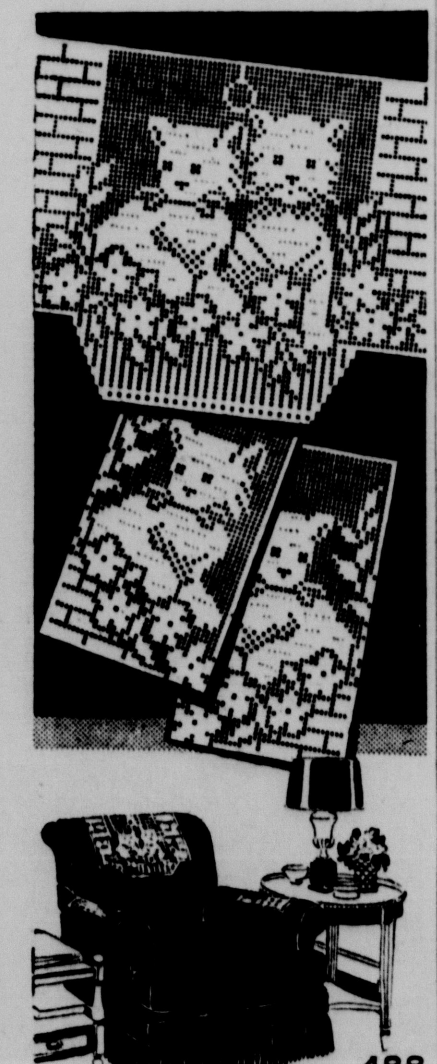

At the close of the afternoon Mrs. Armstrong served exceptionally delicious refreshments consisting of a salad course and dainty sandwiches. The hostess was assisted in the delightful pleasures of the afternoon by Mrs. Bert Briggs and Mrs. Lang Conrad.

Tanda Girls

Miss Kathryn Howard very cordially invited the girls of the Tanda Campfire Group to her home for their weekly meeting, with Miss Marita Craig the president, presiding. Roll call was answered by each one's favorite movie actor. Plans were made for a gift box for a member, Shirley Sue Hayes, who is in Children's Hospital, Columbus.

A tempting collation completed the delightful afternoon plans.

Guest Artist To Be Presented on Cecilian Program

Mrs. Austin F. Hopkins has very graciously extended the hospitalities of her handsome home to the Cecilian Music Club on next Wednesday evening, and combining it with a guest night.

Catherine Carver Burton, brilliant American pianist and native of Colorado, will be the guest artist, and is enthusiastically anticipated. Playing her first concert at the age of seven in San Francisco, she has since studied in Boston, New York and Europe. She has appeared in recitals and as soloist before many audiences in the south, the midwest and the Atlantic seaboard states.

Among the coveted honors she has received are these: a scholarship at the Institutes of Musical Art; a fellowship at the Juillard Graduate School under Carl Friedberg; and a New York debut in Town Hall from the Walter W. Naumburg foundation.

Received in the musical world with exceptional enthusiasm, she is acclaimed widely for her excellent technique, fine tone, and warm feeling. This acclaim has been notable not only in the conventional recitals she has offered but also in her unique presentations of programs built around a central theme—programs that have proved popular among clubs and colleges particularly.

The hostesses for the evening will be Mrs. Russell Giebelhouse, Miss Rosemary Burgett, Miss Lilian Teevens and Miss Golda Cummings.

A black and white illustration of a young girl with curly hair, wearing a dark dress over a plaid shirt, holding two spoons. She is standing on a patterned surface, and a small white object is on the ground.

By ANNE ADAMS
Here's the jumper favorite in a gay version by Anne Adams. Pattern 4170 shows charming novelty in scallops all 'round 'till top! The sash starts at either side-front and ties in a perk-up bow. Make both a warm long-sleeved blouse AND a short-sleeved, lace-edged style.
Pattern 4170 is available in children's sizes 2, 4, 6, 8 and 10. Size 6 jumper, takes 1 1-8 yard for blouse and blouse, 1 1-8 yard for skirt.
Send SIXTEEN CENTS for the Anne Adams pattern. Write please to:

MARCHING BAND PUTS ON FINALE SHOW AT GAME

Ten Seniors in Group Make Last Appearance on Field Friday Night

The WHS Band, under the direction of Paul E. Fitzwater, presented its last marching show of the year Friday night when the members withstood the cold to give the crowd a little extra entertainment at the football game at Gardner Park.

The band entered the field before the game as usual but at the half gave a show which will long be remembered.

Marching onto the field after the football had been auctioned off at the half and before the stands on the south side, the band formed a large "13" for Friday the 13th. At the gun shot, it swung into a big horseshoe formation and then marched into a four-leaf clover, all symbols of good luck.

A "C" with a circle around it which revolved with the music was made before the north side where the Circleville fans gathered then it formed a "W" before the Washington C. H. crowd on the opposite side and played the "Alma Mater" before leaving the field.

Ten seniors, the same number as the football team loses, played for their last football game Friday night. All of them had been in the band for the past few years. The seniors in the band were Dotty McGinnis and Louie King, drum majorettes; Claire McDonald, flag bearer, Jean Everhart, saxophone; Lois Cavinec, piccolo; Annalee Reser, Elda Jayne Mossbarger and Joan Wilson, trumpets; Donald Riber, mellophone and Dale Tool, euphonium.

The Circleville Band was not at the game.

LIONS TO ENTERTAIN BLUE LIONS TUESDAY

'Tippy' Dye To Be Speaker and Will Show Movies

The Lions Club is giving its annual banquet for the Washington C. H. High School Blue Lions Tuesday night and is bringing "Tippy" Dye, Ohio State freshman coach and former coach at Grandview High School, here to speak.

Dye won nine letters while at Ohio State, three each in football, basketball and basketball. He was one of the lightest ball carriers ever to play varsity ball for Ohio.

A great many Lions and guests will be present for the big banquet at the Country Club Tuesday night to hear Tippy Dye speak to the boys, in particular.

MIGRATING GEES WING OVER COUNTY

First Pronounced Move to South Noted

Flocks of wild geese, migrating southward, but apparently in no particular hurry, were noted over Fayette County Friday afternoon and Saturday.

While some of the flocks were headed southward, and flying unusually low, others were circling about over the county and were headed in different directions.

It was apparent, however, that colder weather had sent them moving out of the far north and that the general migration was under way.

RAINS GREAT AID TO FALL PASTURES

In most parts of the community fall pastures have been above the average this fall, due to showers which were sufficient to keep the grass growing.

As a result it has not been necessary to turn livestock on dry feed as early as during some of the falls in recent years.

JOSEPH CRAIG NAMED TO HONORARY SOCIETY

Joseph Craig, son of Mrs. Clarence Craig, 504 East Street has been tapped for membership in Omicron Delta Kappa, senior men's honorary, at Denison University, Granville.

Among five men recognized for leadership in their particular field, Craig is president of the Interfraternity Council and of Beta Theta Pi, social fraternity. He is a member of "D" Association and last year was elected to Blue Key, junior men's honorary.

The first apartment houses in this country were called "French flats".

BLOOMINGBURG PRESBYTERIANS 125 YEARS OLD

Celebration of Event Is To Start Monday Evening

Plans have been announced for observance of the 125th anniversary of the Presbyterian Church in Bloomingburg and the first services will start Monday evening and continue over the following Sunday.

Rev. John Glenn, who has been pastor of the church for many years, is in active charge of the plans, which call for special services each evening next week, except Saturday, starting at 7:30 each night and final services the following Sunday, when a former pastor will probably be the chief speaker.

Monday evening Rev. F. C. Gleason, of South Salem, will deliver the sermon.

Tuesday evening Rev. Ivan L. Wilkin, of London, is to speak.

Rev. C. S. Williams of Cincinnati will be in charge of the Wednesday evening services.

Thursday Harry L. Todd, of Galloway and Grove City speaks, and on Friday night Rev. Robert Kelsey, Cincinnati, is to deliver the sermon.

FLOCKS OF CROWS SWARM OVER FARMS

Thousands Cause Damage In Madison Township

Flocks of crows, containing several thousands of the destructive birds, have been making themselves at home in Madison Township recently, and were still present in large numbers as late as Friday evening.

The crows feed in part of Madison, Fayette and Pickaway counties and spend the night in the area within a few miles of Cook Station.

Damage to wheat and corn has been reported by farmers in the area and a crow shoot may be organized to break up the flocks.

FOOTBALL SOLD AT AUCTION FOR $2000 WAR BOND

Bidding at Game Spirited; Used in Three Games by WHS Blue Lions

A football, steeped in tradition and sentiment, brought a bid of $2,000 for War Bonds when it was auctioned between the halves of the Washington C. H. Circleville football game at Gardner Park.

F. E. Hill, chairman of the county's War Bond committee, spoke briefly on the needs of the country in wartime and how War Bond purchases could help meet them. W. F. Rettig, principal of the high school, told of how the ball he held above his head as he stood in the middle of the gridiron, had been used by the Lions in the games with Greenfield, Dayton Fairmont and Bexley, before he introduced the auctioneer, Frank E. Ellis.

Ellis, describing the ball as "truly a victory ball" called for bids to help in a bigger victory—a victory, which he said, many boys who once wore the blue and white of WHS were now fighting for. Crying "who'll give $100" without results, he dropped down and finally got the first offer of $18.75, the price of the smallest denomination War Bond. Slowly, the bids came at first and on $10 jumps reached $300. From that time on the enthusiasm began to boil with bidders shouting back and forth across the field.

Willard Wilson eventually got it for $2,000.

Saturday morning he said he bought it "not as a football but as a share in insurance that American boys can continue to play football."

He plans to have all of the boys on the Blue Lion squad autograph the ball and then present it to the high school for its trophy case.

Members of the Lions Club helped with the auction, signaling bids to the auctioneer. On the field were Russell Andrews, Sam Parrett, Lamoine Everhart, Robert Hook, John Sagar, Robert A. Craig (he was doing the bidding on Wilson) A. E. Weatherly and Harold McCord.

How many made bids on the football is not known. However, the Lions said after the auction that, among the bidders, were A. B. McDonald, Ernest Ellis, Harold Craig, Colin Campbell, Maryon Mark, McKinley Kirk, and Harold McCord. There probably were many others unrecognized.

The United Nations have been nearest ultimate defeat in those areas where for the time being they have lost command of the seas, in the western Pacific, where Japan still is dominant, and the Mediterranean, where land-based air power has nullified the rule of the fighting ship.

It remains to be seen whether the Axis, confronted with the threat of being swept from the Mediterranean, will be pushed into challenging the British and American fleets on the surface. Together the German, Italian and Vichy French fleets would offer a formidable challenge, but they are not together.

Those present to enjoy the happy occasion were Mr. and Mrs. B. O. M. DeBeck, of Cincinnati and Mr. and Mrs. N. E. Bryan and son, Nickey of Springfield.

THE WAR TODAY

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Domination of Africa Made Possible by Allied Naval Domination of Seas

(This column, conducted as a daily feature by DeWitt Mackenzie, war analyst, is written today by Glenn Babb. Mr. Mackenzie, now touring the war zones, is traveling.)

The big headlines are going to the landing parties of commandos and infantry, the tank fighters and airmen who are nailing down all North Africa, from the Atlantic to the Red Sea, for the United Nations.

But while the victories are being won on African deserts and beaches and in the skies we are reminded that none of this would have been possible without Allied command of the seas.

All the new weapons and new tactics that this war has evolved have not shaken the place of seapower as the foundation on which the United Nations are building victory. "If only there were a land bridge to Africa," moaned a Berlin radio commentator last week as he tried to explain away the disaster that had befallen Rommel in Egypt. But there is no land bridge to Egypt and none to Morocco and so Hitler is confined to the solid limits of Europe.

Seapower has beaten all the aspirants for world dominion since civilization spread from its old world cradle.

General Eisenhower warmly acknowledges the role of the British and United States navies in the undertaking. "Nothing short of marvelous," he says of the way the navies handled this most ambitious and spectacular overseas expedition in military history. But the sea forces' contribution was no less vital to the Eight Army's triumph in Egypt, although spread over dreary years in time and the longest supply route ever maintained for a major military operation.

The United Nations have been nearest ultimate defeat in those areas where for the time being they have lost command of the seas, in the western Pacific, where Japan still is dominant, and the Mediterranean, where land-based air power has nullified the rule of the fighting ship.

It remains to be seen whether the Axis, confronted with the threat of being swept from the Mediterranean, will be pushed into challenging the British and American fleets on the surface. GREENFIELD MAN BADLY INJURED IN AUTO WRECK

Woman Companion Escapes In Early Morning Accident

William Butcher, 19, Greenfield, employed at Patterson Field, is in a critical condition in Hillsboro Hospital as result of injuries sustained when his automobile left the Greenfield Road (Route 70) near the Earl Johnson home, eight miles south of Washington C. H., at 4 A. M. Saturday.

With Butcher at the time, according to information given to Sheriff W. H. Icenhower, was Edith Hetzelman, 17, of Greenfield, who was asleep at the time of the accident, and escaped with minor injuries.

Butcher is believed to have fallen asleep at the wheel, and his car left the road and crashed in a ditch, being badly damaged.

Butcher was hurled forward and sustained a fractured skull and other injuries. He was unconscious when Sam McCullough, of Greenfield, who happened to be passing a few minutes later found him.

An ambulance was called and Butcher was removed to the Hillsboro Hospital, where his condition is very serious, reports stated.
